But then it seems to move the dirt, and that is some consolation to those who are paying the bills.

THE BUTTE LABOR SITUATION

Notwithstanding a report to the contrary, the wages of miners in the Butte district will be paid for the present under the high scale prevailing since the recent agreements between the unions and the operating companies were signed, says the Boston Financial News. Under that contract miners were to receive $4 a day so long as the price of copper remained at 18c a pound or higher; under that figure the wages were to be reduced to the former scale of $3.50 a day. Notices have been sent to the various unions employed in the mining and smelting industry in Butte that for the present there would be no change of wages, although it is well known that the price of copper is below 18c.

John Gillie, general superintendent of the Amalgamated properties, has addressed a letter to the Miners' union and to other interested organizations, stating that owing to the uncertain price of copper, the companies in the control of the Amalgamated Copper Co. would not reduce wages at the present time. It is understood that this notice was sent so that the company would not waive its rights under the contracts with the unions.

A. H. Wethy, general manager of the Clark mines, has addressed a similar communication to the various unions that are parties to contracts with the operators, saying that for the month of September there had been no change in the wage schedules.

"This was done merely to protect the companies," said Mr. Wethy. "For the present we will not change the schedule, but for the future I cannot say what we will do. We waive none of our rights under the contracts."

Neither the North Butte nor the Red Metals companies has reduced the wages of miners, engineers or other employees, and it is understood that they will follow the lead of the Amalgamated Copper company. The smaller companies, with the possible exception of one, are paying the $4 scale and no notice of a return to the old schedule has been posted at the mines.

CORRECTLY SIZED UP

A Boston broker who is in close touch with some of the big men in the copper world, sizes it up this way:

"You notice that the United Metals Selling company makes no effort to meet the demand price for copper—for there must be a price at which the consuming interests will buy—but that its official quotations are steadily above the low prices quoted by the Metal Exchange and the small producers.

"To me the explanation is simple.

"The Amalgamated company found itself with 2,000 tons of coal where it should have had 100,000 tons to carry its mines through the winter.

"It was paying labor in Butte, Mont., the highest wage it had ever received, under a sliding scale agreement by which the wage increased as the price of copper went up and decreased as it declined.

"The management was facing a ruinous situation and the drastic cutting down of operations and the slicing of the price was the only thing in sight to save the day.

"Desperate diseases require heroic treatment, and in this case it was administered.

"The United Metals Selling company is holding back from the copper market and allowing the little fellows to supply what demand for copper there is at bottom prices.

"The current hand to mouth buying is eating up the copper that the small producers have and is also doing something to cut down the accumulated surplus that has been estimated as amounting to 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 pounds.

"It is more than likely that the United Metals company will hold back until such time as the small fry are out of copper or forced out of business and will then reap the harvest that will ensue on a rising metal market when the demand that is now only latent makes its appearance.

"Copper—commercially—is the most precious metal and one of these days the demand for it will be greater than ever before in its history.

"Anticipated labor troubles and lack of fuel have had more to do with the curtailment of the output of the Butte mines than the stagnation of the metal market.

"To my mind Amalgamated is an investment proposition is cheap with all due allowance for what may happen marketwise in the near future."

Thomas A. Edison, the great American inventor, says: "Fully eighty per cent of the illness of mankind comes from eating improper food or too much food; people are inclined to over-indulge themselves." This is where indigestion finds its beginning in nearly every case. The stomach can do just so much work and no more, and when you overload it, or when you eat the wrong kind of food, the digestive organs cannot possibly do the work demanded of them. It is at such times that the stomach needs help; it demands help, and warns you by headaches, belching, sour stomach, nausea and indigestion. You should attend to this at once by taking something that will actually do the work for the stomach. Kodol will do this. It is a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is pleasant to take. It digests what you eat. Sold by Hanna's Drug Store.

READS NOVEL FROM PULPIT

Long Island Pastor Adopts Unique Plan to Diversify Services

NEW YORK, October 15.—To his congregation in St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Tottenham, Staten Island, the Rev. Guy C. Jamieson, pastor, read the first installment of his novel, "Captain Jacklyn's Club," last night. He read ten typewritten pages in half an hour. At the moment when he had his auditors deeply interested and at a climax in the story, the earnest clergyman ceased to read and said:

"That is all for this evening." The Rev. Mr. Jamieson will continue the reading of his novel every Sunday evening during the next three months. He hopes, by diversifying the service, to draw larger congregations, and to point to them a good strong moral. His novel, written with this purpose, teaches temperance in strong drink and urges the extinction of the saloon.

DAD'S OLD ARMY GUN

(By J. Walt Hogue)
When the cooling breeze of fall time Wafts to us the harvest days, And the sun on frosty mornings Wears an Indian summer haze; It brings to mind a picture And recalls my boyish fun, And the time I had when hunting With dad's old army gun.

And when I read the papers Which tell of city chaps Shooting at glass pigeons With their fancy guns and traps, It sets my mind to thinking Of those days when I was some In the woods when I went hunting With dad's old army gun.

This gun was not so stylish, And was heavy as could be, But had a way of killing game That was good enough for me. Old King, my dog, was knowing, And he helped me in my fun By chasing game a-plenty In the range of daddy's gun.

It had a way of kicking Which made me very sore, And the woods around would rattle When this old gun would roar; But the game would always tumble From the tree, or on the run, When I got the hammer working On dad's old army gun.

Many years have come and gone Since I hunted on those hills, And the picture yet still haunts me Till my heart in hunger fills. With a sweet, sad, homesome longing For the joys of that old fun, When a care-free boy went shooting With dad's old army gun.

CRACK GUN IS CRACKED

NEW YORK, October 15.—The allotted time of twenty days for repairs to the battleship Ohio may have to be extended because of the discovery of a crack in the powder chamber of one of her twelve-inch rifles. This defect appeared just after the ship had finished her practice in Cape Cod bay, and was sufficiently serious to prevent the gun from firing in the battle practice. The defect is serious enough to make it necessary for a board of experts from the gun factory in Washington to come on to the navy yard and examine it. When the Ohio was flagship of the late Rear Admiral C. J. Train, U. S. N., on the Asiatic station, the gun made the world's record of three hits a minute at 1,600 yards with the ship steaming ten knots.

New Jersey Father Evolves Plan to Lessen Wife's Work

NEW YORK, October 15.—William Jeffrey of Berkeley Heights, N. J., who is the father of six sons, ranging in age from 6 to 15 years, is building a one-story bungalow in the rear of his home for the exclusive use of his boys, and given over entirely to their care.

There the boys are to live, study and play, and there they can "rough house" to whatever extent they please, says their father, but they are only to enter their parents' house on invitation, and their parents in return will call on them. Mr. Jeffrey said of the plan:

"I had long been trying to devise some way of lessening my wife's work; at last I hit on this, and I have written to President Roosevelt to ask him what he thinks of it. My wife and I believe it will cut down her work by half or two-thirds."
